THE POLITICAL SHAME OF MEXICO CHAPTER I IN order to justify the text that in Mexico things are never what they seem, let us cite an instance very conspicuous. This will necessitate glancing back a little way, four years or thereabouts, along the panorama of that country's recent history. So glancing, the observer's eye is naturally attracted to a brilliant spot, in a physical sense surely the best lighted scene of Mexico's drama. The reference is to the great Diaz celebration with its myriad lamps. There we shall come upon a clue which will lead us to the end of the story, out of the brilliance into the shadow, and through paths exceedingly obscure, hopelessly difficult for those that have no guide. The centenary of Mexico's independence was celebrated in September, that dazzling September of 1910. For the entire month the asphalt section of Mexico's capital was cleared of its twelve hundred beggars and dressed in its party clothes. Receptions, banquets, parades -- all the spectacular extravagances of a nation's festival -- filled the days and nights with obvious rejoicing. The most beautiful women from interior and coast cities and from the haciendas of the hot country were gathered in Mexico City and distributed like flowers to grace a thousand entertainments. Special envoys from all the great nations and most of the little ones of Europe, Asia, Africa and every variety of America -- torrid, temperate and...
