Three main categories define how the author works to achieve this goal: critical thinking, applications, and resources for instructors and students. Critical Thinking: An essential part of teaching environmental science is helping students distinguish sound science from junk science. It becomes increasingly important as students learn to evaluate scientific information and begin to make informed decisions about the environment. "Environmental Science" employs the Strategic themes of sound science, sustainability, and stewardship to help students conceptualize the task of forging a sustainable future for the environment. Applications: "Environmental science" is more than just knowing information about the environment; it's about how students should act toward the environment. "Environmental Science" employs the new Global City CD-ROM, Environment on the Web Exercises, and Making a Difference Exercises to provide tangible, assignable...
